MARKET UPDATE AND COMMENTARY

Whilst the Australian stock market fell for the month, the US equity market nudged into record territory as a Sino-US trade deal, at least an interim one, looks more likely. If that wasn't enough, the Federal Reserve continued its dovish monetary stance by undertaking its third interest rate cut in 2019, cutting its benchmark funds rate by 25 basis points to a range of 1.5% to 1.75%. The Federal Reserve is now likely to pause on further cuts to the benchmark funds rate. Across the Atlantic, the chances of a no-deal Brexit look low as Britons will face another political election that is likely to determine whether Boris Johnson's proposed EU deal will be ratified by parliament. Whatever the UK election outcome, we view the possibility of a no deal Brexit as low. The economic impact of Johnson's proposed Brexit deal remains unclear and is subject to significant debate. The UK will still need to negotiate a long-term trade agreement with the EU. However, over the short term, the ratification of the deal would remove uncertainty and likely to lead to a boost of investment in Britain and overall investor confidence.

Microequities Pure Microcap Value Fund returned 2.17% in October; this brings the total return net of fees to -6.92% for the Fund since inception in October 2017.

During the month, one of our investee companies, CSG Limited (ASX:CSV) received a takeover offer from Fuji Xerox. The offer price of $0.31 per share was a 32% premium to the last traded price, but a significantly lower than the share price only 18 months earlier. CSG is a print and technology business selling print equipment, print supplies and technology solutions on a subscription basis. We think the offer is opportunistic as the business is in the midst of a turnaround by simplifying the business and regaining sales momentum. We also believe there is the possibility of rival offers given the large customer base that CSG can offer to a potential acquirer. CSG represents 2.5% of the Fund assets at month end and the share price was up 38% during the month.

We continued to add to our investment in the enterprise software business that we started buying last month. The business is undergoing a period of investment in product and sales and marketing resources, resulting in likely depressed earnings for the next 18 months. The company is working on new products and over time could provide a significantly larger overall addressable market. In the meantime, we are buying the business on a low revenue multiple, large net cash balance sheet and high recurring revenue. This business now account for 4.2% of the Fund at month end.
